Dream Jobs

An endless space of joy, you swim in with no exhaustion of frustration, moving and moving and hoping to never stop, and why would you when perfection is what you're looking at, even though our definition of perfection may vary, but still, we all swim in the same space while thinking of our dream job.

Dream jobs are what people see as the perfect job to spend their lives doing, with all their different advantages and pros which covers for every other con they have. Dream jobs are different from a person to another cause not everyone of us has the same wishes and hopes for his life job.

I, for example, have always wanted to become a pilot, cause what is better than the feeling of freedom you get from flying an airplane, and the rush of adrenaline while penetrating the thick floating clouds.

But all this beauty requires you to have certain abilities and skills that not all people have, for example, you need to have a high concentration level and the ability to work under pressure, and this is why I think this job is suitable for me, because I remain calm and stay focused no matter what the surrounding conditions are, and I also have the ability to work on a team really well.

Excellent

However, this job doesn't come for free, you won't be able to settle in cause your flying from a city to another all the time, so you'll probably spend most of your times in hotels, and you probably won't get much sleep either.

At the end, you have to know that greatness always requires some sacrifices, but I think it's most of the time worth it, but do you?!
